

FLOWERS AND SHRUBBERY ADD A FINISHING TOUCH TO ALL MEMORIAL WORK

Alternanthera is used to border the graves. Thuja Globosa shrub at each end of monument, and in the center behind memorial Laurocraust Officinalis (English Cherry-Laurel).

Memorial placed in center with individual markers at graves and marble coping to frame lot. The flower beds of Iris or other bulbous plants on each side of plot.

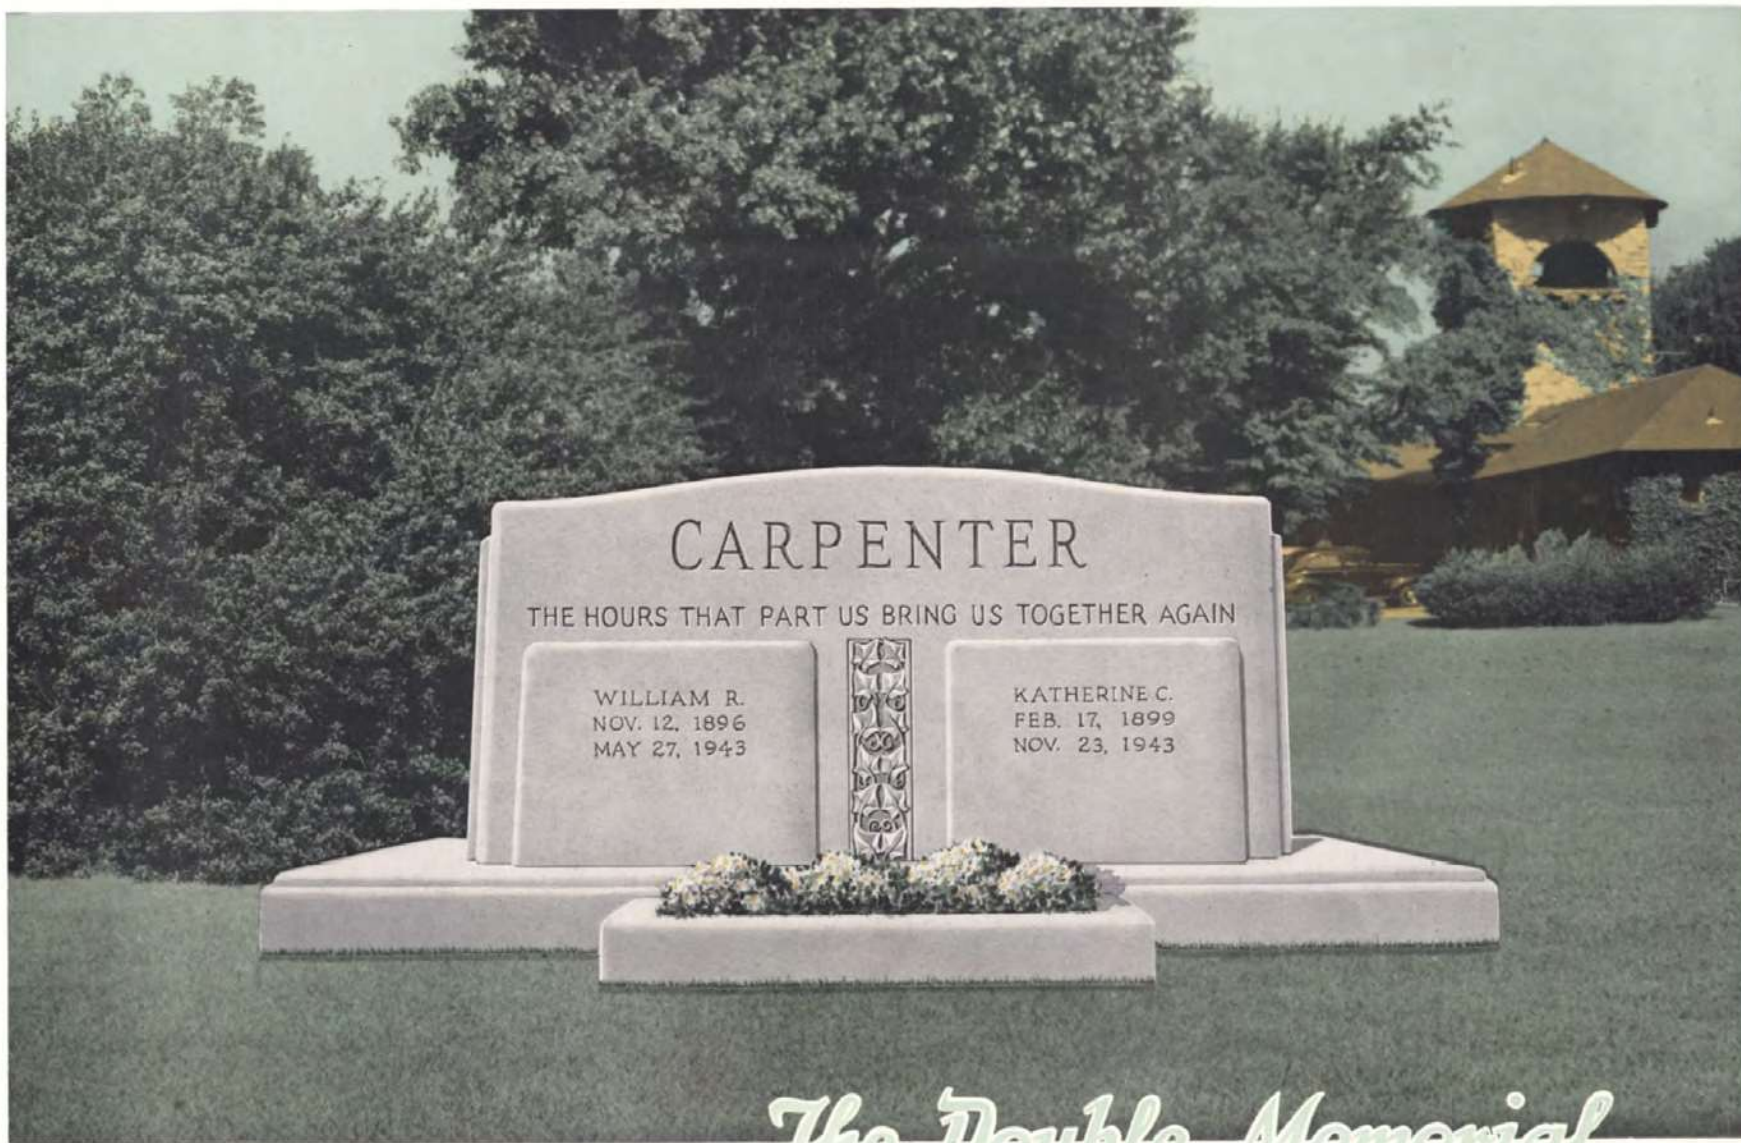

Double Memorials

The popular commemorative double type of memorial has fundamental merit and power that will always survive.

Designs of more than ordinary attraction are presented.

Scale, choice of enrichment features, distribution of values, all these have been determined by most judicious taste and design technique in craftsmanship.

The Tablet

Unique features often found in larger and more expensive work can be incorporated in the less expensive tablet with experienced designing.

Many exceptionally attractive tablets are illustrated, proving the modest memorial can be one of beauty, strength and character.

Horizontal And Vertical Tablets.

In this section is shown the more modest types of memorials—The Tablet. Not everyone cares for the large memorial, such as the Mausoleum or Sarcophagus, and no doubt, many people are without memorials of any kind because of the mistaken idea that inexpensive designs are not artistic.

Memorials in this category are excellent examples of characterful products destined to stand out from the banks of the ordinary.

-The Large Tablet and Stele-

The horizontal and vertical tablets are the most prevalent of all memorials in our cemeteries. The slender, slab like forms are designated as tablets. In this category come the Greek, Gothic and Modern variants of the Stele. The horizontal form is a modification of the Sarcophagus, being less massive, yet rich and compelling in its fine qualities.

These tributes of dignified excellence may be adapted to the smaller plots and the more conservative apportionments, or they can be given the imposing scale adaptable to plots of large area.

Symbols: Rose, Our Lord, The Nativity.

Garden Type Memorials

The Garden Type Memorial is constantly growing in favor and the designer is continually discovering new ways of working the flower receptacles into attractive designs.

It is doubtful if a more beautiful decoration could be selected than the carefully placed cut flowers or the shrubs, which grow and become a living part of the memorial.

McNEEL
JULIUS ROSENTHAL

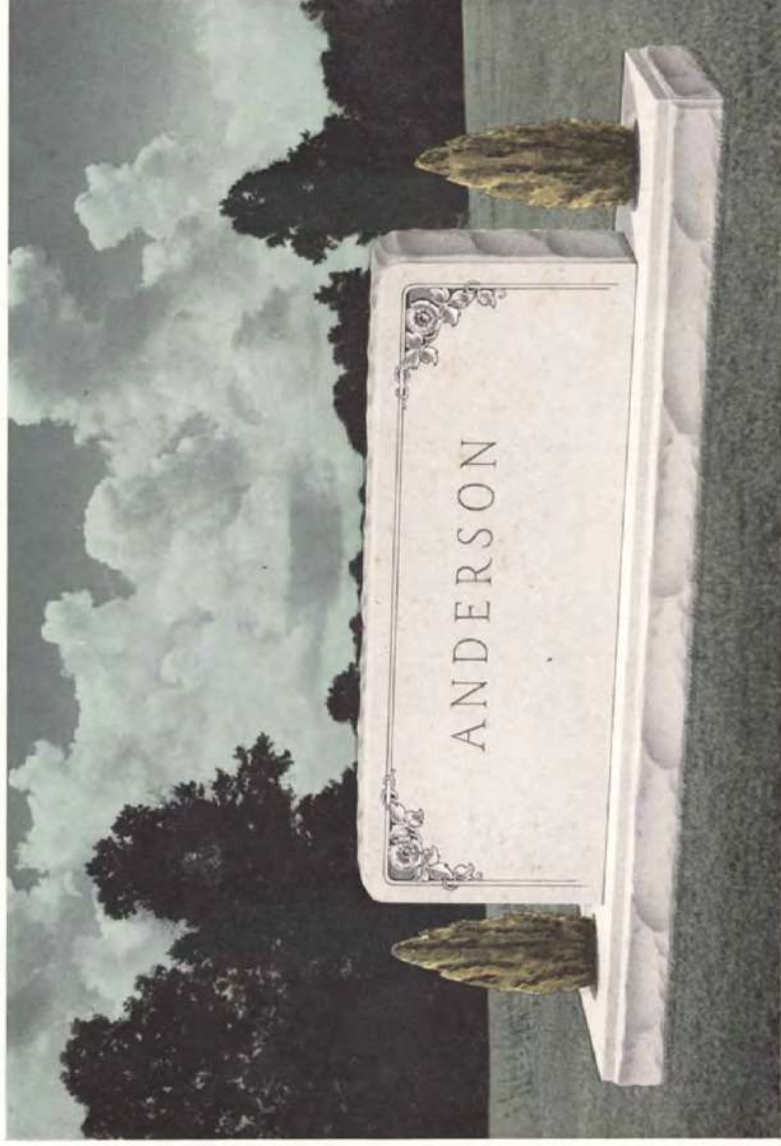

In the Byrum, we have that quality of efflorescence which is so essentially a feature of the Garden memorial. The raised panel admirably serves as a support for the delicately wrought Gardenias.

The naturalist c. Poppy carving on the second base is symbolic of sleep and rest. The die stone is lobbed decorated by a border of Honeysuckle terminating in the final.

This design is characterized by the Cross, emblem of Christ and His Atoning Death, the lilies for Purity and Resurrection, The Acanthus carving, symbol of the Heavenly Gardens, and the well chosen Gothic letters.
